

NU 612 : Organizational Behavior in Healthcare

This course explores human behavior at the individual, interpersonal and group levels, examines the effects of organizational structure on behavior in multi-cultural organizations, and studies practices and methods within the organization that promote or hinder a healthy work environment. Key concepts include ethical management and leadership, and the history and evolution of management and leadership in the United States.

Credits 4.0

Notes

4 credits (Includes Practicum)