

BI 238 : Ecology and Evolution

An introduction to the theoretical and practical concepts of ecology and evolution. Topics include application of the principles of genetics to populations, phylogenetics, history of evolutionary thought from Darwin to the Modern Synthesis, origins of life on Earth, and speciation. One 2-hour laboratory period per week.

Credits 4.0

Prerequisite Courses

BI 110: Biological Investigation

Semester Offered

Offered spring semesters